

Papuans Want Vote in '63

HOLLANDIA, Netherlands New Guinea, Sept. 21 (AP)—The Papuan National Congress voted support tonight for the Dutch-Indonesian agreement on Netherlands New Guinea. But the Congress wants a plebiscite for self-determination next year, instead of in 1969.

The Congress met for the first time to deal with the Indonesian agreement to transfer administration of Netherlands New Guinea first to the United Nations and then to Indonesia as soon as possible after May 1.

The Congress voted, 40—17, for a resolution recognizing the agreement.

The action was taken as José Rolz Bennett of Guatemala arrived here as a United Nations representative to take over as administrator of Netherlands New Guinea.

He is to assume the post after Pieter J. Plateel, the Dutch Governor, leaves Sept. 28.
