The Mayor of the Legislative Assembly is calling on every member of the Government to save the State Labour Party being liquidated. But the Government is not taking any action to save the party.

Every member of the Assembly and the Council has been given the chance to discuss the matter and to keep silent. The Government has been asked to set up a commission of inquiry to report on the situation.

Mr. Heffron said Liberal M.L.A.'s had at first voted for Government because they had been promised that the Government would save the party. But when they had found that the Government was not taking any action, they had changed direction.

Liberal Opinion Quoted

There was one exception, however—the former leader of the Liberal M.L.A.'s for Coogee, who had described the Liberal Public Service as a "law and order" party. "We have ceased to be a law and order party," he said, "and we have become a party of change."

The Premier, Mr. Heffron, delivered the last speech.

LITERARY PRIZE TO MOTHER OF FOUR

A mother of four children, Mrs. Barbara McNamara, yesterday won the £5000 Miles Franklin Award for 1960 for her novel, "The Irishman."

She wrote the novel of her success at the age of 19 in 1956. It was published last year by Hutchinson and sold over 100,000 copies. The novel won the award because of its "richness of character and dramatic effectiveness." Mrs. McNamara is the daughter of the late Mr. J. McNamara, who was a well-known Australian poet. She lives in Sydney with her husband and four children, aged 3, 4, 6, and 7.

From Literary Family

Mrs. McNamara lives in a house in a quiet street in Sydney. Her husband, an architect, is the son of the late Mr. J. McNamara, who was a well-known Australian poet. The couple have four children, aged 3, 4, 6, and 7.

The judges who decided in the competition were Miss Geraldine Wilson, a company director, and Mr. Ian MacKenzie, a prominent lawyer. They chose "The Irishman" as the best novel written by an Australian woman in the English language over the past year. The decision was unanimous.

"The Irishman" is set in a setting where life is hard and every day is a struggle. It tells the story of a young Irishman who comes to Australia with his family in search of a better life. He works hard and saves money, but his dreams of success are thinned by the cruel pressures of life in the city. The novel is rich in character and dramatic effectiveness, and it is a powerful statement about the human spirit in the face of adversity.

Mrs. McNamara said that she had been inspired to write the novel by her own experiences as a child of the Irish migration. She had come to Australia with her family when she was a young girl, and she had grown up in a tough environment where every day was a battle for survival. She had seen the hardships of life in the city, and she had felt the pain of being different. She had written the novel as a way of expressing her thoughts and feelings, and she had hoped that it would help others to understand the struggles of life in the city.

"The Irishman" is a novel that has touched the hearts of many readers. It is a powerful statement about the human spirit in the face of adversity, and it is a reminder that the struggle for survival is a universal experience. It is a novel that will be remembered for generations to come.
