ABORIGINALS AS CITIZENS

Doubts On Welfare Ordinance

SIR,—Following the sub-editorial “Aboriginals as citizens” (July 31), I wish to draw attention to the fact that the new Ordinance, which is to be introduced in the colonial Parliament on August 10, is not in accordance with the spirit of the Ordinance of 1931.

According to the Ordinance, the Minister for Native Affairs is only intended to fix the limit of 21 years of age instead of 18 years as in the previous Ordinance.

The Legal Interpretation

The difficulty arises from the interpretation of the welfare provisions of the new Ordinance.

If the Ordinance is to be interpreted in such a way that the Aboriginals will be entitled to the benefits of the welfare ordinance, they will be entitled to public money and expenditure.

The Ordinance has caused much confusion, and unless the Ordinance is amended, it will be impossible to interpret it fairly.

Some Difficulty

In the case of an aboriginal who is not living on a mission, or who is not under the care of a government school, the Ordinance may not be applied by the government.

Therefore, it is advisable to have the Ordinance amended so that it will apply to all aboriginals who are not living on a mission, or who are not under the care of a government school.

The question of despatching a mission to Berlin in order to attend the conference on education and cooperation in Europe is being considered by the government.

The authorities of the government have decided that a mission should be sent to Berlin in order to attend the conference on education and cooperation in Europe.

Plans For Lead To The Association

The agreement reached last week on proposed Federation of South Arabia (now called the League of Arab States) will not be received in the colony with any hope of acceptance.

Indeed, it is more likely to create a dangerous and unstable situation than it will be able to create a stable and peaceful situation.

SUBSIDIES

Why then will this agreement be so popular if it is not in the interest of any one?

This is the question which the government will have to answer.

Arundhati Sinc In Victorian's

OVER 50 paintings by Victorian artist Roger Kemp spread their intensity and drama over the large walls of Farmer's Blaxland Galleries.

Sincerely—that belaboured word used by all the dignitaries and dignitaries at a justification for their work—merely points to the essence of the paintings.

The exhibition will be opened by Sir John Loder at 3.35 this afternoon.

PVA KUBISTIS, in a collection of excellent drawings and paintings, has thrown his preoccupation with modernism and graphic art into a new total mural of expansive free-form.

There is a new evolution of forms and currents.

Kemp's work is not only influenced by his own style, but also by the contemporary art scene, which is constantly changing and evolving.
